Summary

In addition to the items focussed on yesterday, I elaborated a bit on the foreign religion and the idea of a sun god. The site still reminds me an underdeveloped country like Syria, India, Libya or Lebanon. Then following a movement exercise, I concentrated on a light green "barracks building" constructed of rectangular block forms with L shaped angles (see diagram on page 4). On the inside, the texture of metal kept coming to mind and the idea of military security and safety. While remote viewing, the inside of the building, I saw an army guard by a wide double door entrance way ensuring that uncleared people do not enter. Throughout the session, the idea of combinations was present. I was under the impression that the function and purpose of this military building is not directly threatening. I had the strong feeling, following the session, that this particular building is utilized for military artillery (infantry) supplies.
